‘Camp Millionaire’ now a RESIDENTIAL CAMP at Camp Kresge

On July 11th through 16th, Naomi Schachter, a life coach and founder of Financially Free, LLC, is for the FIRST time ever bringing a Residential version of Camp Millionaire to Camp Kresge in White Haven, PA. Where Schachter, and her Wealth Coaches, using The Money Game and other unique activities, will teach the kids the importance of paying themselves first, investing in assets that produce passive income for their future, and how using other people’s money can be good or bad, depending on how it is executed.

“Children today are faced with a lot of dire economic news. They feel their parents fear and anxiety, but are powerless to make any changes.” Schachter says. “We are providing children with the tools and resources they need to have control over their future in general and their financial success in particular.”

There are three key points Schachter suggests every parent follow:

1. Set the best example you can by your own wise use of money. Children learn about money by how they see parents handle it.
2. Talk with your children about money. Invite them in on the family financial conversations.
3. Provide your children with practice experiences using money. Run the money you spend ON your kids THROUGH them.

During the residential camp, Schachter, using The Money Game and other unique activities, will teach the kids the importance of paying themselves first, investing in assets that produce passive income for their future, and how using other people’s money can be good or bad, depending on how it is executed. All that and a whole lot more. For more information on dates and locations of camps and new programs, visit www.campmillionairePA.com. To schedule an interview with
